

Public television's award-winning independent non-fiction film series presents

What I Want My Words to Do to You

by Madeleine Gavin, Judith Katz, and Gary Sunshine

National PBS Premiere Tuesday December 16th at 9 p.m.
(check your local listings)

What I Want My Words to Do to You offers an unprecedented look into the minds and hearts of the women inmates of New York's Bedford Hills Correctional Facility. The film goes inside a writing workshop led by playwright Eve Ensler, consisting of fifteen women, most of whom were convicted of murder. Through a series of exercises and discussions, the women, including former Weather Underground Members Kathy Boudin and Judith Clark, delve into and expose the most terrifying places in themselves, as they grapple with the nature of their crimes and their own culpability. The film culminates in an emotionally charged prison performance of the women's writing by acclaimed actresses Glenn Close, Marisa Tomei, Rosie Perez, Hazelle Goodman, and Mary Alice.

Tune-in and Talk Back* by sharing your point of view about the broadcast!

Sign-on: to P.O.V. Interactive to engage in ongoing dialogue about the issues raised in the broadcast with viewers nationwide at www.pbs.org/pov after broadcast.
Contact: pov@pbs.org, 800-688-4768 to share your thoughts about What I Want My Words to Do to You

The Making Connections Media Outreach Initiative and the Reentry National Media Outreach Campaign are supported by a generous grant from The Annie E. Casey Foundation.

The Annie E. Casey Foundation